Tip Making several identically shaped copies of an illustration piece and attaching them in stacked fashion adds greater depth to the finished results.

1 Make the parts from illustrations.
Place illustrations of your choice on the cutting mat and cover with a transparent sheet.

2 Using an indelible marker pen or a whiteboard marker, trace the outlines of the illustrations on the transparent sheet.

3 Insert a piece of white paper between the illustrations and the transparent sheet, being careful to ensure that the transparent sheet and the sheet with the illustrations do not become misaligned, and scan using Direct Cut.

4 After scanning, remove the transparent sheet and white paper, and cut the illustrations.

5 Make the frame.
Decorate using lace, antique cards, fancy ribbons, and other such items arranged in an attractively balanced way.

6 Glue the illustration pieces in place.
For a greater sense of depth, use 3D tape or the like to attach the cut pieces.
